priority for the government of Cyprus. An unaccompanied minor is a person in need of protection and is dealt with that as a child, referred to social services which role is to serve the best interests of the child. Family tracing are should take place as soon as possible as long as it is safe and in the best interest of the child. We think this project may contribute to the harmonizing the asylum seekers protection.

Annex 1: Motion for a recommendation PACE

Doc. 13646
03 December 2014

Closing the protection gap of unaccompanied children in Europe

Motion for a recommendation

tabled by Ms Tineke STRIK and other members of the Assembly

There are approximately 100 000 unaccompanied children in Europe. Unaccompanied children can face risks to violations of their rights in their country of origin, during the journey and in the host countries. The guardians of these children in the host countries should be able to play an important role in protecting the unaccompanied children and in ensuring that their best interests are being served. However the level of protection these children enjoy differs a lot across Europe, because the tasks, roles and views of guardians are not respected everywhere.

As the European and international norms regarding unaccompanied children are not always correctly implemented at the national level, legal guardians are necessary to ensure the children's rights in practice. They can only play this role if minimum standards guarantee a good quality, comprehensive role and a strong position of those guardians.

The Parliamentary Assembly should support the elaboration and development of the 'Core Standard for guardians of separated children in Europe' and urge the Committee of Ministers to adopt a recommendation on these standards and set up a monitoring mechanism on its implementation. This would bring the practical implementation of the norms towards unaccompanied minors an important step further.
